

INFLAMED SKIN TROUBLE ON LEG

Itchy, Scratched and Broke Skin.
Scalp Also Bothered. Dandruff Scalded Off. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

613 East 16th St., New York City.—
"About two years ago an itching took place just above the ankle. In a short time it became so itchy that at night it prevented me from sleeping and I scratched it so hard that I broke the skin. The clothing irritated it and added to the inflammation.
My scalp also bothered me.
The dandruff scalded off and could be seen plainly in my hair and when coming in would fall like snowflakes. My hair was very dry and lifeless and came out at the slightest touch of the comb.
"The trouble lasted eighteen months when Cuticura Soap and Ointment were suggested to me. After using them for about a month I felt improved and could rest at night. I have no more trouble now thanks to Cuticura Soap and Ointment. My leg and scalp are healed." (Signed) Patrick J. Reddy, August 8, 1914.

Sample Each Free by Mail With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Adton." Sold throughout the world.

Scale of Calamities.

If, as now seems probable, the Italian earthquake surpasses in its proportions that of a few years ago at Mexico, we shall have a chance to see how the world war has blunted our sensibilities, and to an extent diverted the current of our charities. While we hope that American contributions for the relief of the latest sufferers will be in keeping with their needs, we have no idea that the outpouring of help will even remotely approach that in the disaster of 1905. So extensive has been the appeals for relief in all the war zone and so many have been the directions in which war's blight has spread, that the land of charity finds its vigor very much abated.

Nature is thus no respecter of man-made considerations. It would never have chosen a time for what threatens to be one of the most terrible of historic calamities due to natural causes, when the rest of the world would be so large an extent those on its lands and seas: "What can we do about it?" Thus the unimpaired survivors among the earthquake victims must be added to the list of those in peril and far-away countries who have been spending centuries from the world's great and overchallenging misfortune.—Boston Herald.

The Passing of Turkey.

Of all nations joining the war, Turkey had the least warrant for doing so when internal conditions and national prospects were considered. Belgium had no time to consider, Turkey deliberated even under extreme German pressure, for several months. The wiser, cooler heads in her councils held back, fearing possible extinction as a power, foreseeing disaster to her prestige as Moslem crown of all things, and the loss of the crown of her possessions, Constantinople, and her holy of holies, the mosque of St.
Sofia. Disaster has promptly emphasized her error, the defeat of three army corps of first line troops, one from Constantinople, at Ardashan and Sarykamish has cost Turkey 50,000 men and will ruin her prestige in the bazaar, where eastern opinion and publicity have their only hold on the people.

The state of affairs in Constantinople is worse to-day than it was when Belgium gave way according from Chatelle's famine is attacking the people in the capital, the $20,000,000 sent by Germany has probably all been spent, ammunition is scarce for a severe war. The military authorities have seized everything available, the national defense fund is being subscribed by order. Intrigues in Egypt have failed to rouse the Senousi, the allied fleet is battering the Dardanelles, to-night the Italian time-lin-demand for armaments for outposts on the Italian coast at Rodiole expires—Italy promises immediate military action if Turkey fails to apologize and make reparation. The sultan and his ministers are thoroughly demoralized. Germany cannot save Turkey, the Balkan nations have their final recourse. The Ottoman empire seems to have committed its last and irretrievable error.

The clinching of Turkey as a useful factor in the war of central Europe clears the issue only in so far as it was hoped she would be able to compel a large Russian force to be maintained in the Caucasus and be able to destroy England in Egypt. Neither of these German hopes have fugitive foundation than forested doom. Turkish defense of Italy may be the cause accepted which precipitates that nation into the struggle and ends the present power of Austria as well as that of Turkey in Europe. The world will not be sorry to see the end of the sick man, as we will regret when the sultan of S. Sofia is seen once a Christian church.—Boston

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"Robin Hood" and His Merrie Men at Opera House Tuesday.

"Robin Hood" and his merrie men will present the all-star grand opera revival of de Koven's most famous work, "Robin Hood." The present elaborate presentation of this little masterpiece is the most ambitious effort yet made in the realm of light opera in this country, and it was the first of a series of revivals that are calculated to foster a taste for a form of art that is in a languishing state.

Originally produced twenty-two years ago, "Robin Hood" has enjoyed a career of remarkable prosperity. It has been performed more than seven thousand times, and the melody of its score and the wit of its book will live to give delight to generations yet unborn. The present production will doubtless serve as a sharp reminder of the marked deterioration of the standard of light opera, and it may serve as a good purpose in eliminating the vulgar exhibition of oceanic vulgarity that have taken the place and usurped the name and field of this genre of work. "Robin Hood" has been given a worthy setting and the production is an artistic, as well as elaborate one. The marketplace of old Nottingham and the green shades of Sherwood forest have been reproduced with fidelity and an attempt has been made to preserve the atmosphere of old England in the days when Richard I was king. The costumes have been designed with care and are of the period. To properly cast "Robin Hood," Reginald de Koven drew on the resources of the grand opera houses of this country and Europe. Ivy Scott, a famous prima donna, with a rare lyric voice, was secured from the Century grand opera, New York.

A rare treat will be afforded by George B. Frothingham of the original Bostonians who is still playing his uncanny role of Friar Tuck. Others in the cast are Harold Blake, James Stevens as Little John, Phil Branson as the Lord High Sheriff of Nottingham, Cora Tracy, Tillie Salinger, George Shields, Lorena Carmen, Sol Solman, and superb chorus.—Advt.

NEW YORK AUCTION & COMMISSION HOUSE

His Version.
The small boy came home from Sunday school looking so disheveled and dusty that the mother had grave suspicions concerning his having been at Sunday school at all. He explained his disarray by the fact that he had stopped at a neighbor's house to see some young puppies and had climbed into a stable in order to be able to find them.
"What was the golden text?" inquired the parent.
"Don't worry. You'll get the blanket," was the answer.
"There's nothing like that in the Bible," declared the mother.
"Yes, there is. I guess I know the golden text. Our class said it over and over."

To settle her doubts the mother telephoned to the boy's teacher.
"Harry tells me that the golden text to-day was, 'Don't worry. You'll get the blanket.' What does he mean?" With a peal of laughter the teacher explained the boy's statement, giving the text correctly: "Fear not, the Comforter shall come unto you."—National Monthly.
